Quicksand: A Novel, by Steve Toltz (Simon & Schuster, $26) "A dark comedy that ups the ante on both the 'dark' and the 'comedy,' pulling laughs from some of the worst situations that can be imagined, Quicksand is also an incredible distillation of the absurdity that makes up life in the 21st century. All too frequently, authors who take on so vast a topic struggle to say anything of real meaning, but Toltz drops simultaneously profound and hilarious observations as if they were one-liners and hardly pauses to let them sink in before moving on to the next. With characters both vibrant and tragic, and the story both an encapsulation and a dazzling parody of our modern lives, Quicksand is a book not to be missed." —Christopher Phipps, DIESEL: A Bookstore, Oakland, CA

Undermajordomo Minor: A Novel, by Patrick deWitt (Ecco, $26.99) "With dry and witty dialogue worthy of a Monty Python movie, this wonderful novel takes some getting used to, but once you fall into this world you will not want to come back out. A remote castle, a crazy baron, an incredibly incompetent cook, and a lovely village girl—what else could the young narrator Lucien, known as Lucy, need for a good story? Of course, the fact that he's a compulsive liar makes things more interesting, too. DeWitt, the author of The Sisters Brothers, once again crafts an unusual and wholly entertaining story that is sure to surprise and delight his growing legion of fans." —Dana Schulz, Snowbound Books, Marquette, MI

Me, My Hair, and I: Twenty-seven Women Untangle an Obsession, Ed. (Algonquin Books, $16.95) "Twenty-seven authors share stories about hair and all its meanings in this revelatory collection. Hair can represent class, race, a period in history, health, neuroses, and more. What a wonderful way to ponder our life histories and traumas and still keep a sense of humor as we are invited to remember what hairstyles we were wearing at key times in our lives. Through the focus on hair, this book leads us to consider our stories in both a fun and oddly serious way." —Rona Brinlee, The BookMark, Neptune Beach, FL

Another Indie Favorite for Ages 9 to 12
The Seventh Most Important Thing, by Shelley Pearsall (Knopf Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Life can't get much worse for Arthur T. Owens. His dad is dead, and he has been arrested for heaving a brick at a junk collector he sees wearing his dad's favorite hat. Now the judge sentences him to 120 hours of assisting the junk collector. There are important lessons to be learned and some wonderful surprises in this book. Arthur learns them with grace and good humor under the skilled pen of Pearsall, in a story inspired by the life of folk artist James Hampton." —Julie Wilson, The Bookworm of Omaha, Omaha, NE

Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers
One, by Sarah Crossan (Greenwillow Books, $17.99) "Grace and Tippi are sisters who share everything—their room, their clothes, and their bodies. Meet the 16-year-old conjoined twins who have never wanted to undergo the risky surgery that would separate them until they are forced to do so after a flu virus. Crossan writes with exquisite grace and makes readers question everything they thought they knew about identity, sisterhood, and true love and understanding. Readers will ache to hug Tippi and Grace as they confront the most important decision of their lives." —Grace Firari, The Velveteen Rabbit Bookshop, Fort Atkinson, WI

Another Illustrated Indie Favorite

Max the Brave, by Ed Vere (Sourcebooks Jabberwocky, $16.99) "Simple illustrations and bold colors make this a fun book to look at, and a rhythmic story and the hilarious antics of Max the kitten make it fun to read. Brave Max is eager to catch a mouse. The hitch is that he's not sure what a mouse looks like. Enter a series of helpful animals, a mouse with a keen sense of self-preservation, and an allergic monster, and antics ensue. I hope there are more books starring Max to come!"
