Fellside, by M.R. Carey (Orbit, $27) "Let's say you've been convicted of murder and sent to a maximum security prison for the remainder of your life, which should be a while since you are not that old. Then let's say that not only can you not remember killing anyone, but you can't remember who you are. Could things get any worse? How about if the ghost of the little boy you supposedly killed visits you in prison to ask for your help? What do you do? From the author of The Girl With All the Gifts comes another gripping and unforgettable story." —Linda Bond, Auntie's Bookstore, Spokane, WA

The Railwayman's Wife: A Novel, by Ashley Hay (Atria Books, $26) "The Railwayman's Wife is a remarkable story drenched by the wells of sadness, yet it leaves readers marveling at the beauty of it all. Annika Lachlan is grieving her beloved husband and attempting to find solace in books. But the town of Thirroul, Australia, is home to more than one person damaged by grief. Brought together as members of a club no one would choose to join, each begins to move towards healing. The Railwayman's Wife immerses the reader in Ani's life, and as one savors the novel's heartbreaking prose, a world is revealed in which hope and grief are forever intertwined and love may be the strongest current of all." —Luisa Smith, Book Passage, Corte Madera, CA
