For Ages 9 to 12

Chester and Gus, by Cammie McGovern (HarperCollins, $16.99) "This is a book that everyone can appreciate. Chester, an aspiring service dog, takes us through his journey of living with Gus, an 11-year-old boy with autism spectrum disorder. The typical 'man's best friend' bond is frequently tested and takes more time to build, helping Chester and the reader better understand the challenges and wonders of living with autism." —Colleen Regan, An Unlikely Story, Plainville, MA

For Teen Readers

Goodbye Days: A Novel, by Jeff Zentner (Crown Books for Young Readers, $17.99) "I read this book too quickly the first time, so I immediately picked it up and read it again. Nothing beats the lives of Zentner's Southern teens. My heart ached for Carver Briggs, who is saddled with the unwieldy responsibility of maybe, possibly accidentally murdering his three best friends. The beautiful, difficult expressions of grief from all the people whose lives were touched by the three boys are significant and nuanced. As ever, Zentner taps into the minds of teens with aplomb. Goodbye Days is an incredible follow-up to The Serpent King—it does not disappoint in the slightest." —Demi Marshall, BookPeople, Austin, TX
