Stepping Stones

By Lucy Knisley

“Following her parents’ separation, Jen moves with her mom from the city to a small country farm. But Jen would rather be reading or drawing than caring for chickens, let alone answering to her mom’s annoying boyfriend, Walter, and she really doesn’t want to work the farm stand with Walter’s two daughters. Andy and Reese are so perfect, Jen can’t seem to do anything right. But one step at a time, the farm—and their blended family—finally starts to feel like home. I adore Lucy Knisley, and I’m so excited that she’s sharing her pitch-perfect voice with middle readers in this story inspired by her childhood! Fans of Raina Telgemeier, rejoice!”

Stay Gold

By Tobly McSmith

“Pony and Georgia will steal your heart in this gentle gem of an #OwnVoices contemporary young adult novel about a transgender teen who wants his body to match his identity and the girl who slowly but steadily falls for him. Stay Gold is one of those rare novels that reads easily and has comic romantic appeal, but punches hard realism into your gut. Reminiscent of the nuanced storytelling in K.A. Holt’s Redwood and Ponytail, the novel is both accessible and humorous, yet deeply moving and emotional as Pony and Georgia balance being true to themselves with the often-destructive expectations of family and friends. Hopeful, heartfelt, and very needed.”

Clap When You Land

By Elizabeth Acevedo

“What happens when you find out you have a sister you never knew about over a thousand miles away? Camino and Yahaira Rios are both about to find out. When their father perishes in a plane crash carrying him from New York City to the Dominican Republic, both girls discover each other’s existence, kept a secret from them by their shared father. What follows is a story of love, loss, grief, and everything in between. Elizabeth Acevedo continues to wow with her words, never once letting up on the emotional gas pedal. Clap When You Land is sure to stick with you well beyond the last page.”

Burn Our Bodies Down

By Rory Power

“Power’s second novel has prose sharp enough to carve your heart out and a plot that aims to do just that. While there are supernatural elements at play in the novel, the keenest pain in the story comes from the very human relationships between the members of Margot’s small, splintered family. The complex web of love, resentment, isolation, possession, and fear that binds the Nielsen family is brought to life in all its terrible brilliance by Power’s unique voice. The horror elements serve to further amplify the dark and desperate emotions at the core of the story, creating something truly unlike any other YA novel I’ve read.”

The Unadoptables

By Hana Tooke

“This endearing debut introduces five supposedly unadoptable orphans—Milou, Sem, Lotta, Egg, and Fenna—who were abandoned as infants at the Little Tulip Orphanage in late-19th-century Holland. When the cruel matron sees an opportunity to sell the unadoptables to an unsavory character, the children hatch a plan to escape the orphanage—and along the way discover the truth about their past. With echoes of Dickens and Hans Christian Andersen stories, this book has something for everyone!”

Date Me, Bryson Keller

By Kevin van Whye

“Date Me, Bryson Keller is a gloriously satisfying gay teen coming-of-age love story with characters you’ll think about long after you put the book down (and you won’t want to put it down until you’ve read every word—I didn’t). The narrator, the closeted, gay, mixed-race Kai Sheridan, impulsively takes advantage of a dare to ask out ultra-popular Bryson Keller, who has been dared to spend each week dating the first person who asks him out on Monday morning. Could this possibly lead to the real thing? Highly recommended.”

Private Lessons

By Cynthia Salaysay

“Beautifully written, musical, and lyrical, Private Lessons is a coming-of-age novel that pulled at my heartstrings. Claire’s relationship with her mother and father had me weeping early on in the book, and I admired and understood her drive to escape her suburban life. Her Filipino heritage is a part of the story but doesn’t define her, and the microaggressions that she faces are just like real life—cutting but ultimately unnoticed by anyone but the target. The lens of Claire’s journey is beautiful and brilliant and I enjoyed reading about her growing up.”

TEENS FOR TEENS FOR TEENS FOR TEENS FOR TEENS FOR TEE

We Are Not From Here

By Jenny Torres Sanchez

"This tale will grab you, get under your fingernails, and not let go, so vivid is the story of these three friends on a harrowing journey to save themselves. This story is ripped from the headlines and extraordinary in its depiction of kids running from their country's violence, depredation, and hopelessness. The sometimes-unthinkable events are also tempered with the hope and humanity of kind people along the way. Traveling from Honduras to the promised land of the U.S., your eyes will be opened and your heart will plead for our nation to see these children and treat them with compassion."

—Maureen Palacios, Once Upon a Time, Montrose, CA
